CHRISTMAS LIGHTS UP A CHARITABLE CAUSE - AND DOESN'T COST A BOMB TO RUN EITHER!

Two neighbours in White Dirt Lane, Clanfield, Hampshire have enlightened the spirits of young and old alike this festive period as they pass by, and this illuminating display is all in the aid of charity, The Rowans Hospice in Waterlooville, Hampshire.

Neighbours Dianne & Kevin Clissett and Andy & Jenny Long have placed, hung, stuck and plugged in an overwhelming display of animated and sequenced festive lighting in their front gardens of their homes in Clanfield.

By using new safe-extra-low-voltage and Light Emitting Diode (LED) technology lighting, they have also consciously reduced the current hot potato of an additional "carbon footprint" too, whilst providing a breathtaking son-et lumiere for all nightly.

"Everyone likes Christmas lights and we have gone a bit further and placed a collection of them outside too, but we do it to raise money for The Rowans Hospice Charity " stated Dianne.

"On our first night after switch-on we raised over £10 and that was in a few hours! So we hope by the end of the season we may have a considerable sum to present to The Rowans"

No buckets are shaken, nor doors knocked on in this charitable fund-raiser, just a "donations" box left outside for anyone passing being able to place any donations into it.

The Decorations will remain available for viewing throughout the festive period.
